Welcome!

This issue marks the first newsletter for faculty of the College of Medicine. “Faculty Matters” will be distributed periodically to update you on events and topics of interest. Our goal is to serve as a resource for all COM faculty and offer guidance and professional development opportunities for incoming and current faculty. We offer links to internal, University and external programs and important sources. Our office is available for consultation about promotion and tenure, career development opportunities, general questions about the College and exit interviews. Please check the website for other information.

We hope to see you at the Annual Faculty Appreciation Reception April 23 – see below.

Our next issue will have more information about the status of the Promotion and Tenure Guidelines and beginning reports from the Faculty Forward Survey, completed in December 2011.

Feel free to contact us. We’re glad you’re here!

Calling All Artists!

The College of Medicine has a new front door and we'd like to showcase Faculty art on a rotating basis. Let us know if you have a painting, photograph, sculpture or other creation that you'd be willing to loan us for display in the reception area of room M100. We know you have many talents. Help us celebrate the multiple facets of the College.

If interested call (352)294-5343 or email Marian.Limacher@medicine.ufl.edu

Giving effective feedback to learners can greatly enhance achievement of learning objectives, and can also help students understand how to manage their learning themselves, which is a skill they will need for lifelong education. Providing feedback, however, is not always intuitive — there are certain elements that can make the difference between feedback that is helpful and feedback that is not. In this workshop we will review basic principles of effective feedback and discuss what would be helpful in specific cases.
